Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If the period for reply specified above is less than thirty (30) days, a reply within the statutory minimum of thirty (30) days will be considered timely.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Status

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-2, 6-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e)(1) as being anticipated by Sugita (US 2003/0184521 A1).

Sugita discloses a computer peripheral with cable reeling device comprising a reeling device (15), having a housing (1) and a communication cable extensibly wound in the housing, the communication cable having a extractable end; and an input device (16) which is mouse detachably coupled with a front portion of the reeling device (15), and electrically connecting with the reeling device.

The housing of the reeling device has a receiving portion extending therefrom, the receiving portion is formed with a through hole, and the input device is received on the receiving portion of the reeling device in accordance with claim 2.

The input device being a mouse which is clipped to the reeling device in accordance with claim 8.

The input device has a main body engaged with the reeling device and having a circuit unit mounted therein since the cable is coupled to the circuit of the mouse, a left button and a right button are mounted thereon, and the circuit unit has a left button switch mating with the left button, a right button switch mating with the right button, and a wheel exposed outside the upper shell in accordance with claim 11.

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1-2, 7-9, 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Yong (US 6,088,021).

Yong discloses a computer peripheral with cable reeling device comprising a reeling device (124), having a housing (208) and a communication cable extensibly wound in the housing, the communication cable having a extractable end; and an input device which is mouse detachably coupled with a front portion of the reeling device (214), and electrically connecting with the reeling device.

The housing of the reeling device has a receiving portion extending therefrom, the receiving portion is formed with a through hole, and the input device is received on the receiving portion of the reeling device in accordance with claim 2.

The input device being a mouse which is clipped to the reeling device in accordance with claim 8.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 3-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yong (US 6,088,021) in view of Davis (US 6,589,076).

Yong teaches all the limitations of claims 3-5 except for a computer peripheral comprising a third connector plugged into a second connector. The general concept of providing a plurality of connectors to the end of a cable falls within the realm of common knowledge as obvious duplication of parts which carry no patentable weight. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify Yong to include the use of a plurality of connectors to the end of a cable in his advantageous computer peripheral cable in order to provide for attachment with a different size cable.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure:

Snyder and Major are cited to show related cable reel device in mouse.
